Where to Eat on Christmas Day in San Francisco

by Daisy Barringer | Published on December 17, 2015

http://sf.eater.com/maps/san-francisco-christmas-day-restaurants-2015

You mailed the cards, went to the parties, wrapped the presents, baked the cookies, decorated the tree... and all you want to do is enjoy a nice meal on Christmas Day without lifting a finger. The only problem is that most places in SF close on December 25, so hard-working employees can take a much-needed day off. However, there are a few great restaurants open (and they're not even all in hotels!) where you can get everything from an affordable burger to a fancy filet. The only catch? You'll have to change out of your pajamas.

COURTESY OF RON HENGGELER FOR THE BIG 4 BAR AT THE SCARLET HUNTINGTON

4 Big 4 Restaurant

Start with a cocktail in the lounge and then move on to dinner at this iconic restaurant named after the famed railroad tycoons who lived in mansions on Nob Hill when San Francisco was being developed. (It's dinner AND a history lesson!) There's no prix fixe menu and dinner starts at 4 p.m.

1075 California St
San Francisco, CA 94108
Visit website
(415) 771-1140
American Restaurant, $$$$